Taking The High Places: The Gospel's Triumph Over Fear In Haiti (International Adventures)

Synopsis

Facing death, enduring false accusations, and becoming a prisoner himself, missionary Terry Snow moved out in faith and boldness to share the gospel with the town of St. Marc in Haiti. Amidst the tumult of civil war, gang-fighting, and terrorism, Terry's powerful ministry to the people of St. Marc took him from having a gun pointed to his head to being invited to pray in the presidential palace. His inspiring story shows how one man's obedience to God brought miraculous healing to gang leaders, prisoners, government officials, and the transformed town of St. Marc. There are 14 books in this International Adventures series.

Jemimah Wright has worked with YWAM in Hawaii, the Philippines, and Haiti. She studied at Oxford Brookes University, spent a year in Cape Town helping children affected by AIDS, and then returned to England to train as a journalist. Jemimah lives in Bristol, England, and works as a freelance journalist.

A book where many times God blesses the missionaries. Some parts are thrilling. It really shows the value of prayer and repentance. This is one of YWAM's (missionary organization of high integrity) best books. Treat yourself by reading it.

Fantastic Read! The story of how this man dedicated his life to his calling to the missionary work in Haiti and the sacrifices and situation's he went through to accomplish this. This story shows how God can work through ordinary people to bring about major changes to make this world we live in a better place.

Really amazing book of faith

A fascinating and inspiring story of what God is doing through ordinary people in a really tough country - the poorest in the western hemisphere. I was excited to read this first-person account of an atheist who found faith and learnt to hear God's voice - and now sees him intervening in the world in remarkable ways.

Ignore the review by S. Mitchell "exjupiter" - note Mitchell's title for his/her review - "Racist, American traitor". The Gospel of Jesus Christ is for everyone, regardless of age, sex, or RACE. Now for my review: I loved this book. The stories in this book are incredible displays of our God's power - proof that our God lives! The authors do an excellent job of writing, making this a fast "I can't put it down" read. I personally know Terry and he gave up everything here in the U.S. to live in a country with unreliable power, water, police, etc. He has sacrificed the conveniences most of us take for granted for the sake others.

I laughed when I read the review by S. Mitchell "exjupiter". If you are homeschooling your child, who is this teacher you referred to? Also, what do you mean by treasonous piece of trash? I just returned from 11 days in Haiti at the mission Terry started. I can tell you, every word in that book is true and the story continues to this day. The mission in St Marc has truly changed that city and will eventually change the nation. The power of the Gospel being lived out on a daily basis is truly a wonder to behold. The book is a fast read but very enjoyable and gives you the chance to see God in action through everyday people. Vince Gremillion

My daughter is being home schooled to shield her from the vile indoctrination that government school engage in daily. Unknowing to me, one of my daughter's teachers, dealing with "world literature" came up with this little jewel for my daughter to read. Besides not having anything to do with "world literature", what in this world is this teacher doing, telling my daughter to read this trash written by a treasonous piece of trash?
