I'm Still Here In The Bathtub: Brand New Silly Dilly Songs

Synopsis

If you like... "Wheels on the Bus" and "Itsy Bitsy Spider," you'll go NUTS for "The Meals at My Camp" and "Tiny Baby Brother"! Songwriter and comedy writer par excellence Alan Katz has done it again! He's turned fourteen favorite songs upside down and created new nonsense songs kids will love. With hilariously funny pictures by illustrator and cartoonist David Catrow, this new collection promises giggles, guffaws, and hours of silly dillyness for kids everywhere!

If you fear you might go on a rampage if you hear the lyrics to "Wheels on the Bus" even one more time, take heart: These reimagined, "silly dilly" lyrics can breathe new life into kid favorites like "Wheels," "Itsy Bitsy Spider," and even "Bingo." Just as they did with Take Me Out of the Bathtub, Alan Katz and David Catrow lampoon the classics with rowdy humor and fun-to-sing rhymes. "He's Got the Whole World in His Hands"? Nope. Try "He's Got the Whole Beach in His Pants." "Frere Jacques" becomes "I'm a menace" and you can forget about old McDonald and his farm--that tune now tells the story of "My friend Donald's catfish parm." Katz wisely keeps the lyrics from straying too far into bathroom territory, keeping the fun both palatable and genuinely funny, and illustrator Catrow (Plantzilla, Santa Claustrophobia) again proves an indispensable member of the team, with wry details and memorable characters. (Ages 4 to 8) --Paul Hughes

Grade 2-5-As a follow-up to Take Me Out of the Bathtub (McElderry, 2001), Katz packs the same child-appealing humor into sadly sloppy lyrics that don't scan with the well-known tunes he has tried to fit them to, and which go on far too long. "I Always Lose" (to the tune of "Skip to My Lou") starts with the loss of a parka, backpack, and tuba, and continues, "Turned around, lunch box was gone/Could've sworn I had a hat on/There's no sign of baby bro Ron/He's a pain, but he's darling." "No Medication" (to the tune of "Down by the Station") does what most kids dream of doing: "No medication/Don't care what the doc says/Won't put that stuff in my belly/Tastes bad, you know/Mom sticks it in ice cream/Thinks that she can fool me/I flick it out the window/Look out below!" Unfortunately, the lyrics are even more awkward and less funny when read aloud instead of sung. Catrow's over-the-top, zany, mixed-media cartoons may pull readers into this collection that promises fun, but only delivers frustration. One of my kids favorite books. Super silly rhymes. It may take you a bit to figure out the rhythm of each song, but once you do, you and your kid will be hooked!

Such unique songs to familiar tunes. My daughter's family is very musically inclined and I told her I wanted this book and others that I wanted it back! Haven't seen it since! My grandson was singing anything/everything to the tune of Twinkle Little Star, so hopefully this opened his musical arrangement creations.

I must have been in a hurry when I ordered this and thought I was getting a CD along with the book, so I was very dissapointed to find no CD. My fault after reviewing my order. So beware you may only be getting a book.

This was the second silly dilly songs cd I purchased for my 3yr old niece. She loves it. I personally like the first "Take me out of the bathtub" cd better. The songs on "I'm still here in the bathtub",are to the same tunes as the first cd. I would recommend this cd if you already have the first one and the kids are tired of the same old songs.

These books are so much fun!!! Some times you have to sing the tune in your head a time or two before you get the phrasing right. Kids love to think of some of their own lyrics also.

My granddaughter was so excited to receive this book. It is the sequel to I'm Here in the Bathtub. She took it to school for her teacher to read to the whole class. Thank you! I recommend this book for any child to read.

My family loves to sing and laugh, and this book's lyrics and illustrations deliver on both. I bought this for my daughter at her school book fair years ago and purchased it on for my granddaughter for Christmas.

You have to sing each page to a different tune! Kids LOVE it and ask for it all the time. It never gets old. I have bought this for many many people as gifts and everyone loves it!
