Scare-Izona: A Travel Guide To Arizona's Spookiest Spots

Synopsis

Tour 16 of the most haunted locations Arizona has to offer. Make friends with the ghost girl who watches over visitors at the Bisbee Inn. Meet average people who stay at the Oliver House, but then astral project along the quiet-night streets. Hear voices and footsteps of ghosts who prowl the Noftsgar Hill Inn. The destinations in this book have impressive paranormal activity that are likely to give you your own spooky stories to tell, if not scare the pants off you!

Katie Mullaly's interest in the paranormal began early in her childhood and led to the creation of the paranormal group, Wailing Bansidhe Investigations, partnering with J. Patrick Ohlde. Ohlde's lifelong interest in the paranormal includes more than a decade of investigative experience.

Very good book.

I got this book in anticipation of going on a few ghost hunts just for fun. Authors didn't really have much to say as far as hard evidence and the like. They also seem very hung up on the bathrooms of the various spots they visit for some reason. Basically a book feelings and impressions.

Would highly recommend this book for those interested in the paranormal. Lots of interesting tales about haunted places in Arizona.

I really enjoyed this book. The stories were interesting and believable. I think ghost interactions are much more subtle than you usually see on TV and in movies and Scare-Izona supports this. I also like that the authors direct you in how to conduct your own ghost investigations and don't tell you that you have to have thousands of dollars in expensive equipment. A lot of ghost "experts" make it sound like they are the only people qualified to have a ghost experience. Scare-Izona shows you that isn't true. Anyone could do it, if they were brave enough. (Which I'm not, based on some of the experiences the authors had!) I definitely recommend this book, especially if you live in or are planning a trip to southern Arizona. Read it before you book your hotels, so you know where to go to see (or avoid) the ghosts!
