Evie Litton broke loose from a 15-year career as a technical illustrator to hit the road in 1983. She happily traded her civilized life for a camperized van she now calls home and has been busy exploring the backcountry to find out what secrets lie around the next bend. Sally Jackson is from New Zealand, where she is a park ranger. However, she has traveled extensively and has visited over 280 hot springs in North America, including 126 that are in this book. She is currently working on the 4th edition of her book "Hot Springs of New Zealand."

If you live in Idaho, this is a fantastic resource. In fact, Idaho compromises a great majority of the material in here.

First of all we love our new book! To have such a resource is wonderful! Some things that I love are the directions (though the maps could be better), the pictures of the hot springs and the overall information. One thing I saw that people were complaining about was how much of the book is of Idaho hot springs...well, that's where they are. Nothing you can do about that. One thing I had to do to help me better navigate the book was using tabs to locate the states and subsections. Also, the Idaho map is vague and some of the towns are little ones I don't know and were not marked. I ended up finding each town and marking it on the maps so it was easier for me to know which areas each subsection was talking about. I would suggest this to anyone who wants to hike to public hot springs!

Some directions are unclear

Good book, decent guide. Could be a little more descriptive sometimes, especially as to the overall quality of the springs / soaking experience. But really this is the book for hot springs enthusiasts, hands down

A good hiking book.

Love this book! What a fun adventure finding the hot springs.

Good book

Perfect book!
